a better climate without too great a pull upon his hard-earned savings.

The article closes with the following: Such, in brief and somewhat hurriedly, is a description of these fortunate islands. We could say more, and expatiate further on their beauty and beneficial nature, but we think that enough has been said to tempt the individual having leisure, or the sickly longing for health, to pay a visit to this group.

Now, while nearly every traveler who comes here with correct notions of the Islands, their comforts and discomforts, enjoys his visit and travels; almost every one who visits them with incorrect ideas returns disappointed and vexed.

THE NEW ERUPTION ON HAWAII.—Our letters from Hawaii contain nothing very definite about the new eruption referred to last week. Mr. Chas. Hall, of Kona, thinks it is located in the south pit of the great crater on the summit of Manna Loa.

THE VOLCANO.—By consulting the card it will be seen that from No. 1 to 25 the vessels are arranged according to a regular system which can be readily understood and easily acquired.

NOTES OF THE WEEK. SCENE.—Capt. Preston Cummings, of Kealahou, Hawaii, disappeared mysteriously last week in this city, which led to suspicions that he had committed suicide.

ADVANTAGES TO INVALIDS.—No part of the world offers such inducements to the sick and valitudinarian as these Hawaiian Islands. They combine that certain even point of temperature which is said to be conducive to longevity; their inhabitants bear out the assertion in their splendid physical development, and when not worn into premature old age by the diseases of their mountainous country.

Another paragraph of the sketch relates of the future of this port, when the operations of steam begin to develop our trade and resources: THE FUTURE OF HONOLULU.—It will be a busy time for Honolulu when the great ships arrive and pour their eager crowds of passengers on her lovely shores, and we foresee large and commodious hotels and lodging-houses being built, and a marked increase in the value of real estate for when the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad is built, and New York and San Francisco are but ten days apart, the route from Europe to China or Japan will be through the American continent, and not, as now, by the Red Sea and Isthmus of Suez.

FOURTH PAGE.—The articles on our fourth page need no comments. They are simply an expression of the public sentiment in England and America on the question discussed by them, and as our readers are directly interested in it, we as publishers are bound to furnish the whole story.

THE NEW YORK MAIL OF DECEMBER 11 may be looked for by the Steamer Ajax by the middle of the coming week.

THE MARINE TELEGRAPH.—By the liberality of the Commission of the Crowned Lands, to which estate the Post-office building belongs, a new and more commodious telegraph observatory has been erected for the convenience of the public.
